Introductory remarks

« Pay otherwise you die »! This sentence may seem brutal! And yet, this condemnation has already been applied in various situations.

Indeed, the crisis affecting health systems is intense!

Quite regularly, the most precarious pay the high price: “Death due to lack of care”!

Money quite regularly determines access to basic or even excellent quality care.

Drug patents have been the subject of heated debate for several decades.

AIDS, Hepatitis C, Covid 19;These diseases have been very profitable for pharmaceutical laboratories...

However, medicine aims to ensure and preserve the health of individuals both preventatively and curatively.

Cassandra and her daughter Violène are fictional characters!

Violène was diagnosed with hepatitis C in 2013. She died because she was unable to access treatment.

Despite the conviction of the treating doctor in January 2024, Cassandra remains convinced that: It is the patent on the drug; resulting in the excessive cost of the innovative cure for hepatitis

C; who caused the death of his daughter Violène.

The relationship between pharmaceutical patents and health remains truly complicated.

The choice often seems to have to be made between money and life.

I'll let you form your own opinion on this subject after reading:

“Pay otherwise you die”!

This condemnation exercised in the medical community is unfortunately the experience of people like Cassandra and Violène.

Cassandra lost her 5 year old daughter, Violène, suffering from hepatitis C in 2013. At the time; Revenouxo was a very effective medicine against hepatitis C in the Kingdom of Frankaga. However; her daughter Violène will not be entitled to it...
